

INDIGENOUS LITERACY FOUNDATION

Book order form THE NAKED BOY AND THE CROCODILE

Every book sold buys two books for children in remote Indigenous communities across Australia.

‘Shared children’s stories and rhymes are the foundation of culture. The Indigenous Literacy Foundation not only provides much needed resources to remote communities and promotes the joy of reading in the broader population ... it provides a new generation of Indigenous children with the passion and pride in their stories that I hope will flow to the general community in the form of beautifully written and illustrated books. This project is a real opportunity for all Australians to get involved in a simple, effective and meaningful community activity. I encourage you, your school, your bookclub or your organisation to be involved.’

Thérèse Rein, ILF Patron

The Indigenous Literacy Foundation (ILF) advocates and fundraises for literacy, aiming to improve the lives and opportunities of Indigenous children living in remote and isolated regions.

THE NAKED BOY AND THE CROCODILE is a collection of 13 stories by children from remote Indigenous communities. These stories were written and illustrated in workshops conducted by ILF Ambassador Andy Griffiths, and tell tales of playing with friends, riding motorbikes, picking berries, hunting for emu eggs and wild pigs, terrifying turkeys and angry mamus.

These stories are more than just an entertaining read. The book offers students in the city an insight into the lives of their colleagues who live in remote, isolated areas of Australia. The stories, told in the children’s own pictures and words, show how different the lives and experiences are when you live in the bush.
